Consultant

ABOUT CRAIG

Craig is a highly accomplished business executive combining over 25 years of public accounting, private industry, and nonprofit experience with a Master of Business Administration Degree and three sought-after professional accounting and auditing certifications. A trusted advisor to his clients, Craig applies his strong strategic planning skills and in-depth knowledge of internal auditing and risk management to plan and execute projects that consistently result in positive organizational change, operational excellence, and sustainable improvements.

Serving in key positions with Big Four professional services firm KPMG, a high-tech start-up financed with venture capital, a global research and development organization, a Fortune 100 insurance and financial services company, and a super-regional property-casualty and life insurance carrier, Craig has extensive expertise in multiple industries. He excels as a leader guiding enterprises in their efforts to successfully manage corporate and data governance, fraud detection, control assessment, risk mitigation, business continuity, disaster recovery, and financial integrity.

Craig has significant experience in financial analysis, planning, and reporting, acquisition and divestiture strategies, consolidation and SEC accounting, Sarbanes-Oxley, Model Audit Rule, and specialized regulatory compliance methodologies. From pre-implementation planning to post-implementation testing, he understands how to optimize the benefits of an enterprise's complex internal and external financial reporting systems, while minimizing the security and compliance risks inherent in information technology.

Holding many senior management positions during his progressive career, Craig has a proven track record of developing staff to peak levels of performance, while empowering business leaders and investors with relevant and reliable information for informed decision-making.
