Consultant

ABOUT JD

As an MBA candidate specializing in data-driven business strategy, JD brings nearly 10 years of experience in bookkeeping, accounting, financial analysis, project management and process improvement to his projects. He has served in various roles, including accountant, contracts and billing analyst, insurance case manager, and quality control specialist with organizations ranging from the world's largest independent nonprofit research and development institute to a Fortune 100 insurance and financial services company, a privately held construction company and a CPA firm.

JD excels at client relationship management and effective communication and is comfortable serving multiple departments and entities in fast-paced business environments. His capabilities include accounts receivable, accounts payable, invoicing, general ledger maintenance, account reconciliations, and month-end and year-end financial reporting. Additionally, JD is adept at analyzing contracts, ensuring data compliance with internal and external requirements, and performing quality control functions. He is versed in data analytics for informed decision-making and has experience with QuickBooks, Deltek Costpoint, Salesforce, and other accounting and ERP programs.

Process-oriented with strong attention to detail and organization, clients value JD's ability to efficiently manage projects and tasks while working independently and collaboratively to support their efforts to execute strategies and achieve organizational goals.
